Harris says he was unconscious of any lurking danger, and when within about twenty yards of the woods, at the side of the field, was startled by the report of a gun or pistol, followed by two other reports. As the would-be murderers were immediately in front of him he saw three men, all well known to him standing in the edge of the brush, two with sistols and one with a gun. Harris recognized two of the assailants, but is not very certain of the other. He let loose the plowhandles and ran to save his life, as he was without any means of defense. He heard, as he turned to run, one or more voices calling and hailing him to halt. A warrant was is-sued for the arrest of Z. T. Granger, Willis Tombs and J. J. Deason, and the two first named were arrested by Officer John Orr on Tuesday. The two had a preliminary trial before a magistrate's court, and for want of sufficient evidence were discharged. Both of these men, however, testified that they were present on the occasion, and that Deason who has not yet been arrested, did the shooting. The act was a most destardly and dar-

COTTON EXCHANGE.

The Cotton Brokers' Association of Liv erpool on the Subject of Dampness in Cotton Received from Memphis-Answer of the Memphis Cotton Exchange.

The Matter as to Flax Bagging Discussed -Flax Bagging Recommended as a Covering for Cotton-Repeal of the Bankrupt Law Uemanded.

Yesterday afternoon at half-past thre clock, pursuant to a call made by President Pettit, a large meeting of the cotton ex-change was held. President Pettit, on turing in general, and especially taking the chair, stated the object of the to the causes and influences which have led neeting to be the reception of reports from to this present war upon the flax-bagging incommittees appointed at a previous meeting on the matters of damp cotton and flax bagging.

To the President of the Memphis Cotton Exchange: DEAR SIR-Inclosed we hand you cutting from the Daily Post of this date, showing correspondence between Joseph B. Morgan, president of the cotton brokers' association of Liverpool, and John Phelps, president of the National cotton exchange of America, which we commend to your most careful perusal. It seems to our reading to single out Memphis and St. Louis as being the receivers of the wettest cotton packed in the Mississippi valley, at the same time showing by the own tables that the New Orleans district had forty-nine wet days against emparatirely dry days one hundred and thirty two during the six months of September and February. Our connection with your market and our knowledge of the careful manner in which the cotton trade is conducted, prompts us to place this correspondence before you, feeling satisfied that you will not permit the Bluff City to rest under any unjust charges. Be lieve us, dear sir, yours very truly,

JOHN B. LEECH & CO.

To the President of the National Cotton Exchange of America, New Orleans: DEAR SIR-I beg leave to ask your aid matter that has received a great deal of the attention of the members of this association during the last few months-namely, the damp condition in which this season's cotton arrives from the United States. Importers and consumers are loud in their complaints of the loss they have sustained; and I am directed to communicate with your exchange, representing the matter to you, in order that easures may be taken to prevent further complaints from this cause. The dampness complained of is not merely superficial, but permeates the bale, and its effect is that it makes the staple mere tender and injures the character of the cotton. The cotton from all districts does not contain the same amount of | bill for repeal dampness. Cotton from Arkansas, Memphis and St. Louis is perhaps the worst. The loss of weight in consequence of this failing in the present crop can hardly be computed, but bales have lost seven and eight per cent. weight (over the normal loss) in one week. and four per cent in four days after being placed in the warehouse. I understand that heavy allowances have been made for damp by American planters, but, as far as I can learn, commensurate allowances do not fol-be able to remove it. Yours, etc., JOSEPH B. MORGAN, President. Cotton Brokers' Association, E Liverpool, February 15, 1878. The reply of the president of the National cotton exchange to the foregoing was then read, after which the following report of the committee of the Memphis cotton exchange was presented. REPORT OF COMMITTEE. resident Liverpool Cotton Brokers' Association DEAR SIR-The attention of this exchange having been called to your communication of date of February 15th, and addressed to the president of the National cotton exchange of America, in which cottons from "Arkansas, Memphis and St. Louis" are especially referred to as containing, during the past season, an excessive amount of moisture, and which cotton, upon exposure to the air, lost largely in weight over former seasons, and excessively as compared with shipments from other points in the south, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate and report upon the subject. While regretting that your communication should designate our market in an especial manner in pointing out an unfortunate characteristic of the season's crop, which is common to the entire cotton-growing region of America (Texas excepted), and which is due solely to the extraordinary weather prevalent during almost the entire picking and ginning season, we deem it but just to the character of our market and of our planting community to say that the putting up of the crop in the condition in which it has been sent forward was, to a very great extent, due to Providential circumstances, herein mentioned, and therefore unavoidable, especially so far as the district of country tributary to Memphis is concerned. This fact will be more readily appreciated when we state that the records of the United States signal-service and of this exchange show that during the period from September to February inclusive we had in this section no less than sixty-three rainy and seventy cloudy days, with a total rainfall of 26.46 inches. In a word, on an average every other day during that time was either rainy or cloudy, with a sufficiently humid at mosphere to effectually prevent the usua evaporation or drying out of cotton while in the seed prior to ginning and baling. As a rule, there was no other alternative left the planter. They were either forced to gin, bale and forward their crops in such condi tion as the extraordinary weather permitted or allow a large portion of the product of their fields to go to waste. They chose the former, and we cannot see how, as sensible nen, they could have done otherwise, especially as the weather, from day to day and week to week, showed no signs of permanen improvement. These facts, however, were iliar to all dealers here, and were thoroughly understood by every domestic and for-eign boyer in this market, and it is the custom of our trade to make proper allowance for wet and supposed dampness in the bales as they pass under the scales. We therefore cannot see how it is possible that our cotton should lose in weight to the extent mentioned in your communication. From the natura causes aforesaid we might account for a small loss per bale, but anything beyond that, even during this unprecedented season, must be this matter prominently before the planting interests of our section, and urge the im portance of using every precaution for the coming season to prepare the crop for market in as dry condition as possible. We would repeat, however, that the past season has been an unprecedentedly wet one, and the evi complained of is not likely to occur again. Respectfully,

JOHN W. DILLARD. W. A. GOODWYN, ROBERT WOOLFENDEN,

To the President and Members of the Memphis Cotton Exchange:

GENTLEMEN-The undersigned, a committee appointed at a recent meeting of your body, to whom were referred the circulars of eastern manufacturers of cotton goods and of the cotton exchanges of Savannah, Georgia, and Mobile Alchement of Savannah, Georgia, and Georg and Mobile, Alabama, in regard to the use of flax bagging as a covering for cotton, beg Floyd is now serving the best ice-cream ever offered in the city; made from pure ferred to above, and also from the statement of manufacturers of flax bagging, that there has been manufactured the past year, to some extent, a poor article of flax bagging, such as complained of, but from personal in-terviews with buyers here, both for domestic use and for export, we have not found one that if the inferior bagging complained of

has been shipped to this market at all, it has been to a limited extent, and if such be here, we unhesitatingly condemn the use of it. We would also recommend to the manufacturers of bagging great care in the preparation of their stock, and to dealers that they discriminate in favor of the better article and against the inferior. Also, that manufacturers in future limit the weight of bagging to two pounds to the yard, experience having thoroughly demonstrated that this weight is sufficient to give adequate strength to the bagging, while it is a fact equally well estabished that bagging exceeding this weight i productive of much damage to cotton where lapped on the sides or ends of bales and exposed to wet weather. Respectfully,
